Clark County Agribusiness Technology Park and Central Wisconsin Agribusiness Innovation Center (CWAIC)

Site Description:

Clark County Agribusiness Technology Park is a highly visible park, ideally located in northern Clark County, the heart of Wisconsin. Its location along four-lane Highway 29 provides easy access to larger metropolitan areas in the state, while still preserving our rural character. Clark County is already one of the leading agricultural counties in Wisconsin. It is home to plentiful dairy farms, award-winning butter producers, master and artisan cheese makers, cash-cropping and ag support businesses, greenhouses, tree farms and nurseries, farmers markets and a major wholesale produce auction facility. In addition, Central Wisconsin is developing a strong reputation in the bioenergy field, with numerous alternative energy entities already located in the region. Our agriculture has always been green, sustainable, and innovative. Agriculture is our artwork and the Agribusiness Technology Park is our canvas.
